DEAR OLD CHOPMAN.

The long drought of 187—was broken there could be no doubt of it. Dust, and grime, and thirst had vanished from pavement, grass, and foliage. Rain had come at last; not in a whimsical, intermittent way, as pleased the idle fancy of every adventurous gust of wind, but in an old-fashioned equinoctial down-pour, which filled gutters to overflowing, taxed the capacity of sewers, invaded unprotected cellars, revived youthful speculation touching the father of Japhet and the bow of promise, and ground and polished the cobble paving-stones, until they outshone the delf-ware, and farly rivaled the eyes of the thrifty Dutch housewives, who, in the days of Stuyvesant and Van Twiller, reigned supreme in the red brick, gable-fronted mansions of the lower portion of the island of Manahatta.

So far as the transaction of any business was concerned, the firm of Dappleton & Company, publishers and booksellers, might have closed the doors of their extensive and elegant salesrooms in Broadway. Gargantuan must have been the literally thirst, and impervious the skin of the wight who, in the teeth of such a storm, would seek a bookstore.

And so the five clerks gathered in a little group and discussed the weather, and its probable effect upon the fall races! The porter dried his wet clothing at the huge stove, in which burned the first fire of the season. The gray head of the chief bookkeeper was bent forward upon his ledger, and his subdued though musical snore, blended harmoniously with the smacking of the small errand-bay, who, seated beneath the high desk, was discounting the noon hour, by commencing a lively skirmish with the cakes, cheese, and outposts, which flanked the main body of his dinner, and even the gas jets, lighted by reason of the heavy weather seeing, by their flickering flames no activity worthy of emulation, burned indolently in the murky atmosphere.

Suddenly the street door turned upon its hinges, and the change which ensued would have done credit to the designer of the transformation scene in a great spectacular play. The porter began mending the fire with all the skill and energy of a born stoker, the small errand-boy bolted the entire currant tart at which he had been economically nibbling, and industriously resumed his occupation of dusting the legs of the tall desk; the gray-haired bookkeeper awoke with a snort, and fell to work upon the tail of a final g, over whose delicate curves he had lost consciousness; the gas jets increased their flames a full inch, lost their yellow hue, and seemed entering into active competition with the electric lights in the cafe across the street; four of the clerks began consulting lists and assorting books, as if business was at its floodtide, while the head salesman adjusted his cravat and hurried forward to greet the first customer of the day.

But the first customer, a tall, angular man of apparently sixty years, seemed in no hurry to be greeted. He leaned a faded and dripping umbrella against a bookcase, unreeled several yards of worsted comforter from his elongated neck, removed a rusty silk hat, evidently a reminiscence of bygone days, straightened his frowsy wig, wiped his steaming spectacles, and turned the surprised salesman a pair of piercing black eyes that seemed quite capable of looking through him, and reading upon the back of his collar the name of its manufacturer.

"What's your name?"

As the new-comer spoke, he darted towards the breast of the salesman the long index finger of his right hand, which caused the young man to start as if fearing the concealed point of a dagger.

"My name," answered he, "is Hooker."

"What is your age, and where do you live?"

"I am thirty years of age, and I reside in Harlem," replied the now thoroughly mystified salesman.

"Are you the proprietor of this establishment?"

"No, sir, I am only a clerk. Here comes the senior member of the firm," and Hooker indicated a white-haired old gentleman who was just entering the room from his private office.

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked the publisher, bowing politely.

"Let me see. What is your name?"

"Dappleton, Chauncy Dappleton, at your service.

The long, bony hand began moving towards the silver spectacles as if contemplating a military salute, but, pausing on the journey, unfastened three of the twelve buttons, which secured the tight fitting, ministerial coat, and disappeared into the mysterious depths beneath.

After several lunges and gyrations, reproduced in miniature by the contortions of his mobile face, the strange gentleman brought to the surface, and thrust into the hand of Mr. Dappleton, a large card, upon which was printed, in heavy type:

"OLIVER DILLHORN, D.D., LL.D.,
Pres. Union College,
Unionville, Tenn."

"Delighted to make your acquaintance, Dr. Dillhorn," began Mr. Dappleton, extending his hand, "I think that several years ago——"

"The faculty and board of trustees," interrupted the doctor, in a deep, sepulchral voice, "have ever had in view the greatest possible good for the greatest possible number; and actuated by this noble sentiment, coupled with the growing needs of the country which surrounds us, and especially stimulated thereto by an endowment fund of twenty thousand dollars, by a late friend of the college, bequeathed for the express purpose, have, after careful, and I may add, prayerful consideration, decided to enlarge our field of usefulness, by adding to the existing departments of the college, videlicit the classical, the scientific, the pharmaceutical, the commercial, and the post graduate, a school of divinity and theology."

"It gives me great pleasure to learn it, doctor. In these days of materialism and infidelity——"

"The board of trustees supplemented by the faculty," resumed the reverend gentleman, with a preliminary cough, to silence the bookseller, "with a unanimity which I considered highly flattering, have nominated and appointed me, the president of the institution, as a committee of one, to visit New York, and select and purchase for the new department, a theological library, and a supply of text books; the establishment of the curriculum being left entirely with me. Knowing your house by favorable reputatien, I have called to examine books and make selections."

"I am pleased beyond expression," replied the publisher bowing. "When will you commence your work, doctor?"

"At once, if convenient. It will occupy several days, and the trustees and faculty will be anxious."

Half an hour later Dr. Dillhorn was seated in the private office, surrounded by racks and chairs filled with books, deep in a comparison of the merits of Paley and Alexander, Edwards and Dwight.

For over a week he labored industriously, selecting, rejecting, and making notes of doubtful cases, in a crabbed hand for future reference.

"My labors are almost at an end," said he to Mr. Dappleton on the morning of the eighth day "and but for one difficulty I could complete my order to-day."

"A difficulty! I'm sorry to hear of it. Can I assist you in any way?"

"That's the point. I trust you can. A correct knowledge of Hebrew lies at the root of a theological education, and a good grammer is the foundation of a knowedge of Hebrew. There is my difficulty; a good Hebrew grammar I cannot find."

"We have several."

"True, but they are all defective. I'd give six prices for the one I used in my student days. Dear old Chopman, no such Hebrew scholar lives to-day."

"I'm not familiar with the work, but you shall have it if it's obtainable in New York. Here, Hooker make around of the bookstores, and see if you can find Chopman's Hebrew grammar."

Two hours later the young man returned. He had not been successful. All agreed that it must be out of print. In fact no one remembered to have ever seen it.

"I'm greatly disappointed," said the doctor, shaking his head sorrowfully, "but I suppose I must adopt one of the new-fangled, inferior works. I regret it all the more because only this morning I received a letter from an old friend, a professor of Hebrew, asking me, if possible, to secure a supply of Chopman for his college."

"Hooker," said Mr. Dappleton, "did you call at Haverty's?"

"No, sir, I did not. I thought it hardly best in view of the trouble we had with him last month."

"Oh, that amounts to nothing. He is only a little jealous. Run over to his store; he may have what we want. And Hooker," said the gentleman, recalling the clerk, and speaking to him aside, "if it comes right, give him a pointer about our eccentric new southern customer, and the large order he is giving. It will make Haverty sleep well."

"I've found them at last," cried Hooker, as after a few minute's absence he burst into the office. "Haverty has three hundred of them and I've brought a copy for your inspection."

"Dear old Chopman," cried Dillhorn, after a critical examination of the book. "How it carries me back to my boyhood. I'm so glad you have found it. I must wire the faculty and trustees of my success."

"What does Haverty ask for them?" inquired the bookseller.

"That's the trouble, sir," replied the clerk. "He says he can't sell them for a cent less than three dollars per copy."

"Three dollars! and for a book like that. He must be crazy," cried the publisher.

"I feared the price would be high, for, you see, I know their value. It is too much; but my heart is set on dear old Chopman, and I'll take them all, and indeed, with two colleges to supply, they'll not last long."

"Oh, I forgot to mention it," said the salesman, "but Haverty has the plates from which the books were printed, which he will sell for five hundred dollars."

"How I would love to have them," said the doctor, excitedly, "but my commission is to purchase books only, and I have no authority to buy them."

"Make your mind easy on that score, my dear doctor. We will purchase the plates, and print as many editions as you desire."

"Thank you, Mr. Dappleton," cried the reverend gentleman, extending his hand. "You are more than kind, and I trust and believe that the investment will prove a profitable one for your house."

"Go over to Haverty's," said the old gentleman to his clerk, "and tell him we will take the books and plates. Wait, let me make him a check for the fourteen hundred dollars, I don't care to be under obligations to him.

"And now Mr. Dappleten," said the doctor, as the young man left the office, 'my work is completed. You have treated me kindly and given me excellent prices, and I thank you, not in my own name alone, but in the names of the trustees and faculty—yes and in the names of all who appreciate the value of a higher religious education. When will the books be boxed for shipment and my bill prepared?'

'Early to-morrow morning.'

'Very well, I will call at 10 o'clock,' and the reverend gentleman wound himself up in his comforter, settled his wig, wiped his spectacles, put on his hat, shook hands with the publisher, and left the place.

On the following morning at 10 o'clock, eighteen large boxes of books, each bearing the name and address of Dr. Dillhorn, stood in the packing-room of the establisment, and a formidable itemized bill, with a total footing of more than nine thousand dollars, lay upon the cashier's desk; but the reverend doctor himself did not appear.

'Hooker,' said the publisher to his clerk, as the day drew near its close, 'I'm worried about this Dillhorn matter. Step over and ask Haverty where he bought those books and plates.'

'Certainly, Mr. Hooker, your house is welcome to any information in my possession,' said good-natured Mr. Haverty, when asked the history of the plates and books. 'About ten days ago a gentleman called, and asked me to purchase a lot of Hebrew grammars, and the plates for producing them. I told him they were of no possible value, except as old metal and waste paper. He seemed greatly disappointed and asked me to store them for a short time, and try to find a purchaser on a commission of ten per cent. He named a price which confirmed my previous belief that he was a crank, and so, to humor him, I told him he might leave them with me. Of course I had no idea of selling them, as I had not yet heard of your new southern customer, and his extensive order.'

'And you have not seen him since?' asked Hooker, wincing.

'Oh, yes, he called shortly after you left yesterday, and collected the amount of your check, less my commission.'

'And you know nothing further concerning him?'

'Nothing, except that a gentleman who saw him leaving here yesterday, told me that he was a noted sharper, wanted by the police for swindling several unsophisticated people.'

'I'm very much obliged, sir. Good evening,' said the young man, rising.

'Wait a moment, Hooker. As he was leaving yesterday, he handed me this card. Please give it to my friend Dappleton, with my compliments,' and Mr. Haverty took from his desk and handed his visitor a large card, upon which was printed, in heavy type:

'OLIVER DILLHORN D. D., LL. D.,
Pres. Union College,
Unionville, Tenn.'

Mechanically the young man turned the card in his hand, and on its back, in the peculiar crabbed hand of the southern customer, saw the heavily underscored words: 'Dear old Chopman.'—Dwight Baldwin, in the Current.

Burial of the Gypsy Queen.

Jentie Jeffy Harrison, the young gypsy queen, who died at Jackson, Miss., on Dec. 31, 1886, was buried at Dayton, O., in the gypsy lot at Woodland the other day. At her death the body was embalmed and sent north. She was the daughter of Henry and Tallie Jeffreys, who own large tracts of land near Dayton, and are related to the Stanleys, who reign over about twenty tribes that make their summer home in the Miama valley. Besides the immediate relatives about 100 gypsies were present.

The burial is the fourth of the kind that has occurred in Dayton since 1857 and, as on former occasions, attracted crowds of people to view the street pageant. The funeral cortege consisted of a caravan of thirty large wagons loaded with famlies and carrying all their camp and household equipage. Following each wagon were the horses and dogs of the family, numbering in some cases fifty animals. The procession was nearly a mile in lenght and there were in line about 500 horses.

A squad of police prevented the entrance to the grounds of the crowd. The Rev. Daniel Berger, of the United Brethren church, conducted the religious services, consisting of prayer, and Scripture readings and a sermon. The mourners sat about the grave while the caravan of wagons, horses and dogs was kept contiually circling the grave on the win ding roadways. When the minister concluded, the mourners rose a nd began a low chant in gypsy dialect. The refrain was caught up by the occupants of the moving caravan and soon the air resounded with the moaning and wailing. Young gypsy girls carried flowers of scarlet hue and showered them in the grave. They cried: "Good by, Jentie! Good by, sweet queen! Good by!" These manifestations of grief continued until the pastor bade the mourners retire.—Dayton (O.) Special.

Pernicious Literature.

The best society for the suppression of pernicious literature is the family. The best legislation that can be passed for the prevention of vile literature can be passed by father and mother in joint convention assembled. Daily teaching to love and study good and useful things will bring boys and girls to detest the opposite. These are the only means by which the sale of pernicious literature can never be permanently and effectually suppressed. The passage of laws of the State and the watchfullness of the societies for the suppression of pernicious literature may do some good for the youth who have no parents to teach them, but to provide sound early training for them would do far more good.

A Wrathful Professor.

The doctor, a man of dignity, of social importance, of professional weight, and a man who kept his classes in a New York medical college sharply up to the mark, and could ill brook ignorance or stupidity, was one day questioning an assemblage of young men in the college amphitheatre, as to what should be done when an acid reaction was obtained in testing the various fluids of the human body.

"What," he asked, "would you do if you found a man's blood acid?"

There was no answer.

"Does no one know?" said the doctor, beginning to wax wroth.

It was painfully evident that no one in the class had arrived at a sufficient pitch of pathological profoundity to wipe the rapidly deepening stain of ignorance from his class.

At last the doctor said, fairly blazing, "Well, if you don't know I'm blessed if I tell you."

When the class was dismissed a student, bolder than his fellows, approached the doctor and said:

"I beg your pardon, doctor, but we are all anxious to know what we would do if we found a man's blood acid?"

"Why, order his coffin, you fool," roared the doctor, and the interview terminated with anger and contempt on the one side and with grief and humiliation on the other.

THE ETIQUETTE OF ALBANIA.

Flirtation Unknown and Love Making Forbidden—The Marriage Ceremonies.

The dress of the Albania women is ungallantly described by travelers as hideous. It is said to be of thick material and shapeless; a leather band encircling the waiste, and usually a little black cloak is thrown over the shoulders. But the wearers are the most beautiful women of eastern Europe, and their manners always gracious.

Flirtation is unknown, and even the most decorous love making forbidden. The proper thing is for the lover never to see his intended till their marriage day. She has been carefully secluded in the recesses of her house till her parents think she is old enough to be married. Having arrived at this conclusion, they announce the fact; if the mere announcement is of no avail, they adopt strong measures. The lady's brother will politely come up to a friend in the street and pleasantly remark: "You are just the fellow I wanted to see. My sister is 14 years old; you must marry her."

No Albanian who respects himself rejects the proposal of his friend, in fact, he regards it as an honor, and knows that a refusal means a duel to death. Like other more western mortals, he may have a morbid curiosity regarding his friend's sister's personal appearance, and then he has to recourse to the inevitable old woman the entremetteuse in the true sense of the word, whose profession is to intervenein such cases. She calls on the bride, inspects her, and the returns to the expectant swain with a detailed account of the young lady's qualities, of course colored in proportion to the fee she has received. Then the wedding day is fixed, and at last the happy pair are face to face.

The etiquette of Albania requires the bridgeroom to be coy and reluctant; it is considered degrading to his dignity to affect any tenderness for the fairer sex, and therefore he is bound to offer strong resistance to her approach. In marked contradistinction to the usual marriage ceremonies, which point to a capture of the bride, the Albanian customs indicate a capture of the bridegroom, and yet the whole race displays a degree of contempt for women which is not found in the most barbarous nations. It is worthy of remark, also, that in every family the males usually go to the mosque, the females to church.

The Largest Farm in the World.

In the extreme southwest corner of Louisiana lies the largest producing farm in the world. It runs 100 miles north and south and —— miles east and west, and is owned and operated by a syndicate of Northern capitalists. Their general manager, J. R. Watkins, gives an interesting account of this gigantic plantation, which throws the great Dalrymple farm in Dakota into the shade completely.

"The 1,500,000 acres of our tract," Mr. Watkins said, "was purchased in 1883 from the state of Louisiana and from the United States government. At that time it was a vast grazing land for the cattle of the few dealers in the neighborhood. When I took possession I found over 30,000 head of half wild horses and cattle. My work was to divide the immense tract into convenient pastures, establish stations or ranches every six miles. The fencing alone cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. The land I found to be best adapted to rice, sugar, corn and cotton. All our cultivating, ditching, etc., is done by steam power. We take a tract, say a half a mile wide for instance, and place an engine on each side. The engines are portable and operate a cable attached to four plows, and under this arrangement we are able to plow thirty acres a day with only the labor of three men. Our harrowing, planting and other cultivation is done in a like manner; in fact, there is not a single draught horse on the entire place. We have, of course, horses for the herders of cattle, of which we now have 16,000 head. The Southern Pacific railroad runs for thiriy six miles through our farm. We have three steamboats operating on the waters of out own estate, upon which there are 300 miles of navigable waters. We have an ice house, a bank, a ship yard and a rice mill."—St. Louis Republican.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, MAY 19TH, 1887.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

HON. S. WOODS CALDWELL, proprietor of the Irvin House, Lock Haven, and an ex-member of the Legislature, is mentioned as a candidate for Treasurer in Clinton county.

THE Democratic State Central Committee of Pennsylvania convened at Harrisburg last Wednesday, and decided to hold the next state convention on Wednesday, August 31st, in Allentown.

MRS. U. S. GRANT just passed safely over a serious spell of diptheria. Her ailment was of such malignant character as to necessitate the removal of all her grandchildren who at the time were at her residence in New York.

THE anti-discrimination bill has gone under on second reading. That is another sample of how the Republican party keeps its promises. The defeat of the bill will be a disappointment to all anti-corporation people in the state.

As was expected Governor Beaver affixed his signature to the high license bill which recently passed both Houses, and it will now become a law. For the better information of our readers as to exact contents of the bill we publish the whole on our fourth page.

MASTER WORKMAN POWDERLY on his return to Philadelphia from his western trip the other day was in an ugly temper about the newspapers and said that hereafter the order of the Knights of Labor will change its tactics entirely. For the last year they spoke freely about the growth of the order and its increasing influence. But since the press attacked the K. of L. and Mr. Powderly, his orders to the Knights are "Mum."

THE congressional apportionment bill passed the senate finally on Tuesday and is now ready for the Governer's signature. Among other bills passed finally was the one increasing the compensation of witnesses attending court; authorizing county commissioners to build bridges or aid in building bridges the erection of which would require more expense than it is reasonable one or two adjoining townships should bear. The bill appropriating $690,000 for capitol and executive mansion improvements also passed finally. In the House a large number of bills passed finally and some third reading. The members are working hard to get through with their business before adjournment to-day.

THE recent strike of the Chicago bricklayers who up to this time stubbornly refuse to go back to work, clearly manifests that in the last ten years a slavery system has sprung into existence which is as detestable and as injurious to the industrial interests of this country as was the slavery of the negroes before the late rebellion. The only difference is that now the slaves are the white people who have voluntarily put on the yoke of slavery.

They are the men who belong to Labor Unions and who are cowed into subservience by the leaders whom they themselves have set up as their dictators. Like so many frightened sheep they are driven by the thousands, anywhere, even to want and starvation. More than that, the true value of labor is greatly reduced through the unwillingness of these men to make a distinction between good and inferior work. They demand the same wages for the work of a bungler or novice as they would for that of an experienced and good workman. Such unreasonableness will naturally have a tendency to discourage skillful labor. The desire to excel will grow less and ambition will be an unknown thing, when good work is worth no more than inferior work. It is right and commendable for workingmen to form organizations for mutual benefit and to discuss and provide the best ways and means to protect and advance their interests, but when they sacrifice all power of will and privilege of free thinking and blindly follow the dictates of selfish leaders it is about time to call a halt.

OVER 133,000 emmigrants have come to this "land of the free and home of the brave" since the first of January, 1887. The tide of immigration is said to be stronger now than it has been since '49 and '50, the majority coming from Ireland.

The Rev. John L. Riordan was questioned to-day regarding this immigration. "Yes," he said, "the present flow of immigrants to this country is without precedent within the last third of a century. They are coming from all parts of Europe as fast as transportation can be found for them. They are all a good class of immigrants, mostly with families, with a large proportion of vigorous, healthy young people. The Scandinavians are a very desirable class of immigrants. They come to stay and go west at once, taking up land and becoming prosperous farmers. They assimilate readily and adapt themselves to the country. The Irish are more gregarious, and like to hang around the great cities. They are natural politicians, and make themselves perfectly at home here. As a general thing they do not like farming, but prefer clerical work. The women find ready employment as house servants, and are taken up as fast as they come. Within a couple of months they have adopted American fashions and manners. The Italians come to do the work the Irish used to do. They are ready and willing for any employment, however servile. They become street sweepers, railroad builders and diggers generally. They live close, save their money, and then go back to Italy to set up as counts. They are not the most desirable class of immigrants, and do not contribute to the permanent growth and prosperity of the country as do the Scandinavians and Irish."

The Duty of Workingmen.

New York Herald.

If workingmen want reform, not of the pinchbeck kind—the kind that the politic schemers howl about when they want to get the "ins" out and get themselves in—but the genuine article, eighteen carats fine, they can have it by pulling altogether and pulling with all their strength. It is a grand day for the Republic when the laboring classes organize for the purpose of making government purer and more honest.

Let them go ahead with a firm determination to denounce the "sham" in everything.

Let them move on the earthworks of intrenched corruption wherever they find it.

Let them start an avalanche of ballots that will bury out of sight every politician who does not believe that public office is a public trust.

Let them make it thunder all round the horizon against the invasions of the people's rights by which monopoly fills its pockets from the earnings of the masses.

A cyclone of that kind, sweeping across the continent and tearing existing evils up by the roots, is something to be welcomed, not feared.

If it is started by the workingmen rather than by the statesmen of the land, all the better.

It will show, what the Herald has always asserted, that both the heart and the brain of the wage earner are in the right place.

Now then, gentlemen, what do you propose to do and how do you propose to do it? You belong to the Democratic party pure and simple, and minus any "sham." That party is the party of the masses; therefore it is your party. You will insist that your rights as citizens and wage earners shall be jealously guarded by wise and vigorous legislation? Good. You will require the leaders of that party to remove all unnecessary taxes and burdens, to get rid of a corrupting surplus in the treasury, to put an immediate stop to the waste of the people's money, and to give the poor man every possible benefit of the situation? Good. You are right.

Under a Republican regime monopoly was rampant. See for yourselves how it has grown during the last twenty years. Great corporations have received great privileges, by which a few have become immensely rich at the expense of the people. That kind of Republicanism was a sham and a humbug.

You expressed an opinion on the subject in 1884, when you said, "We have had enough of you—step down." Under the same regime your land has been stolen by the million acres—you see we are calling a spade a spade—and the farms—your farms which your children or your children's children will want by and by, have been taken from you by hocus pocus mixed with perjury waist deep.

You want to check monopoly and reclaim this stolen land? It can be done, and you can help to do it. When Mr. Cleveland went to the White House, at your bidding, he was pledged to rip open these plots for aggrandizement. He has been opposed by interested parties, by powerful cattle syndicates, by railroad corporations with millions at command, and shrewd lobbyists in the Capitol to "influence" legislation. But he is a good fighter. Your party, the party of the democracy, must stand by him. During the last two years an area of territory more than twice the extent of Ireland has been reclaimed, and the land grabbers have been told, "You can't have it. Empty your pockets of stolen property."

Randall and the South.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Representative Randall yesterday visited the shipyard of the Arrow Steamship Company at Alexandria, Va. His interest in the industrial development of the Old Dominion stimulated his desire to make a visit trip to the ancient metropolis of the Potomac. The voyage down the Potomac was taken in the swift tug Spray, the president of the company, T. O'Meara, Resident Director J. A. Connelly and Mr. Marsh being in the party. The trip was made quietly and occupied four hours. Mr. Randall took a deep interest in an explanation of the model of the proposed steamship Arrow, which is to be 550 feet long, forty feet beam and forty-seven feet hold, and designed to cross the Atlantic from New York to Queenstown in six days.

Mr. Randall, speaking of the wonderful resources of Virginia, said; "No one can study the economic history since the foundation of the government without gathering an important lesson from Virginia. With a territory possessed of unequaled agricultural and mineral wealth with mineral and vegetable fuels and water in a bundance, with unrivaled facilities for transportation, she has fallen from the front rank in population when the constitution was formed to fourteenth in the list of States. She has been outstripped by New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Massachusetts, Kentucky, Michigan, Iowa, Texas, Tennessee and Georgia. Or if West Virginia were part of her borders she would still be sixth in the list. In industrial development the relation is equally favorable. Of course Pennsylvania is bound to take the first rank in the race with New York, but there is no reason why Virginia should not stand by the side of New York and Pennsylvania. She has the resources.

"I well understand that the economic conditions forced upon the South by slavery heavily handicapped Virginia' but we are now speaking of the new South and see such states as Missouri, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Texas forging ahead. In my conversations with Virginians I see them realizing their interests economically considered, and it is remarkable to me that Democrats up in public affairs will persist in pushing pro-British economic doctrines to the front when almost every state south of the Potomac and the Ohio is fast drifting the other way. It would be far wiser to accept the situation and take advantage of the revolution in public sentiment. It would be about as easy to stem the current of the ocean Gulf Stream as to try to stay popular convictions founded in local and individual interests."

The ex-speaker added; I want to help the South in the very direction in which she wishes to help herself. If her own leaders, I mean many of them don't see the crisis ahead and meetit by turning in with the current and keeping it in the line of friendship, there will be a suddenness and overwhelmingness of reckoning such as has never been seen here or elsewhere."

JUDGE WOODS DEAD.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Justice William R. Woods of the supreme court of the United States, died at his residence in this city at noon yesterday. He was seriously ill in California about a month ago, but improved enough to enable him to come home. After his arrival he continued to grow worse. His disease was dropsy.

In Memory of Justice Woods.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The United States supreme court met at noon today, and as a mark of respect to the memory of Justice Woods immediately adjourned until Monday next. The most of the justices will go to Ohio to attend Justice Woods, funeral.

The Supreme Bench Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—There is considerable speculation as to who is to succeed Justice Woods on the supreme court bench. It is generally supposed that it will be a southern man, since Justice Woods' death took from the bench the only southern man; but men from various sections of the country are spoken of as a possibility. Besides Messrs. Garland and Endicott, the names of Messrs. Larmar and Bayard are mentioned. Senators George and Gibson and ex-Representative Hammond are suggested. General Pettis, of Alabama will probably be pressed for the placeby the delegation of that state.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 16th, 1887.

The country youth or maiden who reads of the happy lot of the government clerk here, with his salary of from $1200 to $1800 per year, with his abundant leisure, and with the great advantages, social, literary, and spectacular, which life at the Capital affords, is filled with longing. If the country youth and maiden are not angels, they may even be filled with envy. The enchantment which distance lends to alleged happy lots is often provocative of envy. Perhaps the only happy lot is the little one of six by three feet upon which daisies cluster, but in which there is enchantment only for those who have seen iridescent bubbles of life burst at the touch, including even the bubble of a government position. But this is a digression from the strait and narrow path of a Washington correspondent.

Your correspondent wishes to explain that he was not discharged, he resigned and retired into the business of journalism, and I look on my experience as a Government clerk without envy or longing. But to the average ex-clerk the retrospect is much less enviable now, than it was in 1873. Perhaps the greatest ill and the terror of youth is the school examination. Oh! dost thou remember? Think of a life of protracted school examinations! Such is to be future life of the Government clerk! He may no longer drive his pen in peace, or furtively read his newspaper. President Cleveland has decreed that he shall stand an examination for promotion, wether he wants promotion or not, and that if he fails to reach an average of 75 per cent, he must step down and out. Saints, sinners and the Beecher family! but this is hard on the gilded and kalsomined youth and maiden whom Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Blaine, Mahone, Conkling and all those illustrious spoilers pensioned upon the Treasury in the riotous days of reconstruction and carpet bags.

The very idea of a competitive examination is quite paralyzing, for they know little spelling, and less arithmetic. Geography, mahogany, physics and hysterics are all the same to them. There has been an increased demand for school books in Washington during the past week, and the Capital of the United States is likely to be the paradise of pedagogues. Already they have advertised to prepare applicants for civil service examination. But the fact remains that an education cannot be improvised, and the middle aged Republican clerks who have impaired their minds as well as their hearts in straining to keep alive the memories and the policy of the war, have no vitality for the study of text books.

CULTIVATION AND REFINEMENT.—Hon. B. S. Hewitt, ex Speaker House Representatives, writes:

J. A. McDonald,

Dear Sir:—I have been buying my flavoring Extracts for years from a Pittsburg manufacturer. Recently we tried a bottle of yours and found it very good indeed. Enclosed find five dollars. Send me its value in your Vanilla Extract.

Moral—Always ask for McDonald's Flavoring Extracts.

General Orders. No. 7.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF PENNSYLVANIA, GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC, No. 1210 CHESTNUT ST.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24, 1887.

I. The seasons of the year have again run their course, and we are hastening on to another Memorial Day. As in the past, so let us now prepare to perform with tender and loving hearts the sacred duties of the day, that the memory of our dead comrades may be held in ever increasing honor, that the cause to which, in the hour of a nation's peril, we devoted our lives on the land and on the sea, may grow in glory and renown, and that posterity may until the last articulation of time comprehend the cost at which American liberty was preserved, and resolve that it shall be maintained as long as the world endures.

The time will soon come when all personal grief growing out of the death of those who fought in the civil war to maintain the National Union shall cease, but the time will never come as long as humanity remains faithful to its destiny when the achievements of the Union army will be forgotten. Its deeds of glory will increase in lustre, and its sacrifices, its valor and its heroism will more and more command the reverent admiration of a grateful people as the ages roll on to eternity. Memorial Day must, therefore, become less a day for sorrowing than a day for sacred and profound rejoicing that Liberty is a priceless possession, and that in every time of need those who enjoy it will sacrifice all, suffer all and dare all to maintain and preserve it.

Let us, therefore, on the coming 30th day of May observe it not as a day of sorrow, but as a joyous festival of patriotism. Let us strew with flowers the graves of our dead comrades, not as a memorial of their death but in thanksgiving to God for the example of their heroic lives, and as an inspiration to coming generations to emulate their sublime devotion to their country's cause, to the Flag, and to the highest interests of humanity.

II. It is recommended that in accordance with established custom, Posts repair to some place of Divine worship on the Sunday next preceeding Memorial Day, to unite in solemn praise and thanksgiving to God.

BY COMMAND OF Department Commander
SAM'L HARPER.

Drowned at Fairview.

Jos. Hurst and Harry Bowers, two boys, aged respectiyely 13 and 15 years, were drowned last Saturday, while bathing in Conodoguinet creek, at Fairview, near Harrisburg.

A Train Stopped by Cotton Caterpillars.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 15.—There are such myriads of cotton caterpillars in the Pedee swamp, this state, that a mail train passing over the Pedee trestle was brought to a standstill by thousands of these worms being on the rails and causing the wheels to slip.

The Largest American Ship Afloat Lost and No Word of the Crew.

BOSTON, May 13.—A dispatch has been received in this city stating that the ship Ocean King, the largest American ship afloat, had been burned at sea while on a voyage from Nanaimo, B. C. to San Pedro, No tidings have yet been received of the crew. The Ocean King was of 3,515 tons burden and was built at Kennebunk, Me., in 1871.

—It is a curious fact that the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

Mines Threatened by Mountain Fires.

TAMAUQUA, Pa., May 13.—The mountains near the Coldale colleries, a short distance from this place, are one mass of flames and much trouble is experienced in keeping the fires from the breakers air holes. The miners are hard at work in endeavoring to change the course of the flames. The country is beclouded with smoke for many miles owing to the mountain fires now in progress.

Fatal Fire in Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 13.—The Cedar Lake shops of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad were destroyed by fire early this morning, together with a number of freight cars. The loss on the shops is estimated at from $35,000 to $50,000, and on freight cars and contents $25,000. No. 206 Sixteenth avenue, South, burned, and Mrs. Matt Johnson was rescued so badly burned that she cannot live.

Big Iron Works Destroyed, Entailing A Loss of $300,000.

PATERSON, May 13.—One of the most destructive fires ever known in this city occurred last night, when the works of the Patterson Iron Company were destroyed. The loss is estimated at fully $300,000. Some idea of the value of the machinery may be gathered from the fact that the forge department, with its machinery, cost $60,000; the steel-plate mill, 100,000; the blacksmith department, $40,000, and the face-plate lathe, with its foundations, $15,000.

A Busy Brain Upset.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Matthew Low, formerly editor of Harper's Weekly, was committed to the Flatbush Insane Asylum yesterday morning. The examining experts reported that he was suffering from melancholia, and when walking in the galleries of the jail he was seized with an impulse to throw himself over the railings. He imagines that he sees the form of his mother every night, and hears voices of dead friends, who ask him to come to them. Over work was his malady.

Emulating Mad Ludwig' Fate.

MUNICH, May 13.—Another tragedy has just been enacted at Lante Starnberg. Two ladies of Munich, Baroness Anna and Baroness Louise, of Gutenburg, rowed in a boat to the spot where King Ludwig of Bavaria met his death, and deliberately threw themselves into the water and were drowned. The next morning the boat was missed and a search was made. The bodies of the ladies were found lying in soft clay. Both were clasped in each other's arms. They were pretty, rich and cultured. They had been suffering with melancholia ever since the king's death.

After Gas at Philipsburg.

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., May 13.—While boring an artesian well at Wigton & Soul's mines at Morrisdale, near this place, at the depth of nearly 900 feet, natural gas was found in such quantities that when a torch was applied a steady flame of several feet issued from the opening. Messrs. G. E. Glenn, of Butler, and A. J. Malaskia, of Tarentum, have charge of the work. They are experienced and they say that the gas struck here only pocket gas, but they are confident at a depth of 1,500 or 2,000 feet a reservoir of natural gas of large quantity will be found. An effort is being made to have a hole put down in the commons opposite this place, and possibly enough capital can be obtained for the purpose of making the fullest investigation.

—The skin can be kept soft, white, and free from taint of perspiration by adding Darbys Prophylactic Fluid to the water used in bathing. It removes all offensive smell from the feet or any part of the body. Used as a tooth wash it will harden the gums, preserve the teeth, cure tooth-ache and make the breath pure and sweet. Cures chafing and inflammation, Piles, Scald Feet, Corns, etc.

A Mother and Her Two Little Children Meet a Terrible Fate.

PITTSBURG, May 13.—A horrible accident occurred last evening at Coal Valley, a few miles from McKeesport, which resulted in the burning to death of Mrs. Cook and her two little children and in the total destruction of the house. Mrs. Cook was using petroleum oil to kindle a fire, when the contents of the can ignited and an explosion followed. The woman rushed out of the house with her clothing in flames and perished in the yard. The house took fire and was consumed and two little children who were in it perished in the flames. A third child only escaped a similar fate by following her mother out of the house. The husband was a miner.

A Remarkable Case of Faith Cure.

CINCINNATI, May 15.—A remarkable case of faith cure was developed yesterday in the restoration to health of Mrs. Martha Wilson. The lady had been for seven years a helpless invalid, lying on her back and remaining perfectly speechless. Her father, a Methodist preacher in this state, had turned against her, and her husband deserted her in her trouble. Three months ago she was taken to the Faith Cure hospital, on West Sixth street and treated in the peculiar way of that institution. She was a few days ago pronounced cured, with the exception of her voice. She returned to her lodgings and remained until this morning when suddenly she recovered her voice, and is to-day walking and talking as well as any other person.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for June is on our table, fresh and bright as the first month of summer itself. The steel engraving, handsomecolored fashion-plate, and numerous wood-cuts are even above their usual average of excellence, and, regarded from a literary point of view, this number, both in matter of tales and poetry, is more than ordinarily rich and varied. The illustrated story, "Dick Lacey's Choice," is charmingly told, and Mrs. Sherwood's interesting serial, "The Professor's daughter," closes in a dramatic and satisfactory manner. A new volume begins with the July number, affording a good opportunity to subscribe or to form clubs. A specimen copy will be sent free to anyone desiring to get up a club. Address PETERSON'S MAGAZINE, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dead in the Woods.

Alexander Whilldin Jr., the well-known wool broker at 126 Chestnut street, Philadelphia and living at 1439 North Fifteenth street, committed suicide on Sunday morning at Dobbs' woods, two and one half miles out of Camden, on the Mount Ephraim pike, by blowing out his brains with a 32 calibre Smith & Wesson revolver.

At half-past nine o'clock in the morning a number of boys taking a short cut from the pike through the woods to Newton Creek, where they intended to fish, when they came across the body of a well-dressed man lying in the grass, with a ghastly wound in his head, from which the blood was still oozing. A bright new revolver was lying on the ground by his side. They at once informed Ex-Constable Dobbs, the owner of the woods, of their terrible discovery, and Mr. Dobbs notified Coroner Davis, of Camden. The body was taken to County Undertaker Jeffries establishment, where the body was searched. In the pockets of the coat was a number of letters addressed to Alexander Whilldin, Jr., 126 Chestnut street and 1429 North Fifteenth street. There was also $30 in cash and a number of checks.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid instead of weakening the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. —Judging by the appearance of the appletrees in this part of the county there will be an abundance of apples. The trees are so thickly decked with blossoms that they look like large bouquets.

—The properties at the southern end of Penn street have been undergoing extensive repairs of late. Since B. O. Deininger enclosed his lot with a new picket fence that part of town looks much improved.

—Landlady Mrs. Cole is now presiding over the Logan House in Logansville. Her ripe experience in the hotel business is sufficient assurance that the Logan House will be conducted in the best and most modern manner.

--The band marched up to the toll-gate in the Gap last Friday evening to serenade Mr. Woomer and awaken the echoes on the surrounding mountains. On their return they favored the people living on North street with some of their best.

—A very handy book for reference was recently published by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia. It contains a collection of historic and geographical information about all the counties and towns in the state.

—Those of our readers who have wells on their premises and are using the water therefrom should take advantage of the dry spells of weather to clean the wells. It may be the means of preventing deadly diseases arising from impure water.

—Prepare for the band festival on the 28th and 30th instant. The boys will see to it that you will be served with the best ice cream, the finest cakes and the coolest lemonade. Come and bring your friends, and don't forget your pocket books.

—The State Board of Agriculture will meet in the Court House at Bellefonte on the 8th proximo. About fifty of the best informed farmers will be in attendance and the discussions of agricultural topics promise to be very interesting and instructing.

—Why is it that so many people come out of J. W. Stover's store with a smile all over their face? A question easily answered. Because they buy fresh and new goods of him at lower prices than others sell old goods at. He carries an elegant line.

—The Chicago Syndicate which purchased the half-interest of Lauth's Rolling Mill at Howard last week took posession of the works last Monday. The price paid was the handsome sum of $50,000. The people of Howard are much elated over the boom.

—On Saturday the 28th instant, at sundown, the Hebrew Feast of Weeks, or Pentecost, will begin. It commemorates the gift of the law on the fifteenth day after the departure from Egypt, the day on which the first fruits of harvest were to be offered.

—Dr. S. G. Gutelius, one of our dentists on Main street, finds that his professional card in the JOURNAL paid him well enough to continue it another year. Such is the uniform verdict of all our advertisers. The doctor backs up his announcement in the paper by good work.

—With the warm weather tramps and gypsies put in an appearance. A camp of the latter class rusticated in A. R. Alexander's woods, southeast of town, last and this week. They are a regular pest when they begin to canvass the town for victuals and anything else they can get.

—We cannot vouch for the accuracy of the assertion, but it is said that Clayton knocked his antagonist out in the first round last Saturday night. The slugging match took place in front of the Musser House, with a number of experts for referees. No use butting against Jumbo.

—The announcement of Joseph Smith, of Gregg township, as a candidate for county treasurer appears in this issue. Like all good Democrats he has forgotten past defeats at the hands of his party and makes up his mind to "try, try again." We are free to say that he is one of the deserving men in the party.

--J. W. Snook altered the iron railing enclosing the out side cellar steps of his store building on Main street, and laid a flagstone pavement around the same. Still it is not considered safe by the town council and he has again been notified to close up the man-trap. Time will tell where the difficulty will end.

—There will be Quarterly Meeting of the Evangelical Church next Sunday at Aaronsburg. Preaching in the morning and evening of said day by Rev. Pines, P. E. The probabilities are that Rev. Pines will also preach at Millheim on Monday evening. If so the ringing of the Evangelical church bell will make the proper call.

—You will find McDonald's Improved Liver Pills so satisfactory as a corrector of a torpid liver, as a regulator of the bowels, as an eradicator of billiousness, that you will regret not having tried them sooner. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.
JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & CO.,
Philadelphia Agents.
Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—Mrs. Rev. John Tomlinson, of Abbottstown, Pa., arrived in town on Monday evening, and spent a day at B. O. Deininger's residence. The lady has not changed much since her departure from our midst, but still retains her amiable disposition and good nature, and her many friends here gave her a glad and unbiased welcome.

—Joshua Israel, the jolly Clothing man, came to town on Monday evening, to tempt some of our merchants to buy from the contents of his huge trunks. Joshua is one of the liveliest salesmen on the road and though small in figure carries a big heart under his vest. The band boys favored him with a few tunes and he promptly returned the favor with an almighty $.

—Every day the fact is becoming plainer that Musser's Shoe store is the place to buy your boots and shoes.

—Business!—The fellow who exchanged his old straw hat for a new one would do well by rectifying his mistake. He is known and if he don't respond we will send for him. D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

—Yesterday afternoon our townsman, Mr. F. D. Luse had the misfortune to have one of his thumbs tore off at the first joint, while at work in the planing mill. He was adjusting one of the belts, when his thumb was caught with the result as stated. His physician considered amputation unnecessary and thinks the wound will heal all right.

—The Bellefonte Daily News of Tuesday says that J. Calvin Meyer, Esq., the District Attorney of this county, will be married at half past seven o'clock Thursday evening, the 26th inst., to Miss Lizzie L. McCalmont, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. McCalmont. The wedding will be celebrated in the Presbyterian church.

—Ammon E. Strayer, of Wolfe's store, is canvassing Centre and Clinton counties in the interest of a large Photo copying house in New York city. All wishing to have photographs enlarged in the most artistic style, either in oil or in India ink will do well to examine his samples before ordering elsewhere.

--Geo. W. Spangler, of Potter township, called at this office yesterday forenoon and ordered his name announced as a candidate for treasurer. We were glad to make his acquaintance and found him to be a pleasant talker and a man dyed in the purest democratic colors. He means to "get there" if it is in the wood.

---In the general scramble for county offices this fall Haines township thinks it ought to come in for a small share, and Mr. M. S. Fiedler is the man who represents that township as a candidate for County Commissioner. If nominated and elected Mr. Fiedler will be a credit to the commissioner's office. His announcement may be found in another column.

—The legal holidays as fixed by a recent bill passed in both Houses of the legislature are as follows: January 1st, New Year; February 22nd, Washington's birthday; May 30th, Decoration day; Thanksgiving day; December 25th, and every Saturday afternoon between July 15th and September 15th, after 1 o'clock. Presumably 4th of July and Good Friday are intended to be legal holidays.

—William Ishler, of Benner township, was in town last week to build his political fences. He is a candidate for Sheriff and being a life-long Democrat with lots of friends in the party he will no doubt make as good a run as any of them. He favored this office with a call and during our conversation with him we could not help but form a very favorable opinion of the gentleman. His announcement appears in this issue.

—W. T. Auman, of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed church Lancaster, Pa., came home to remain a few months with his parents and breathe the healthy mountain air of Penns Valley. We are glad to hear that he is quite successful in his studies for the pulpit, and are authorized to announce that he will preach at Salem church on Sunday, May 29th, at 10 o'clock, a. m., and at Aaronsburg in the evening of the same day.

TAKEN BY THE POLICE.—The other evening, says an advertising agent, I was leaning against a lamp post taking notes when a policeman came along and wanted to gobble me up for being drunk. The only way I got out of the scrape was by showing him the following lines which I had written:

If for the cheapest and the best,
And for the goods you do adore,
At night you cannot rest,
Just go to Kauffman's mammoth store,
And give their goods a test.

VINTAGE OF GRAPES FOR INVALIDS.—The Port Grape Wine of New Jersey, is the best medical wine in the market, and it is said that the vintage of Alfred Speer far excels any other produced. It is heavy in body, rich in flavor, and well adapted for sickly persons and for general family use. It makes new blood and gives color to the pale and sickly. Leading physicians prescribe this wine in their practice, and use it at their own homes. Druggists sell it.

—One of the noticeable improvements on Main street is the elegant new sign of Musser & Smith, the hardware men. It was painted last week by a party calling themselves the "Western Sign Painting and Fence Advertising Company," and the gentleman who did the work is certainly an artist. The whole sign is a sheet of tin, the ground being painted black, while the letters stand out boldly in their natural metallic color, the tints being heightened by bright and heavy shading. The words "Post Office" adorn the front glass door in a similar style.

—As arrangements for decoration day in this place are developing the indications are that the parade will be a large and attractive one. And that reminds us that some provision ought to be made by our town council to keep teams of horses from being tied on Main street during the parade on decoration day. The noise, confusion and waving of flags are very likely to frighten the horses and serious accidents, especially to children, are almost unavoidable. There were several very narrow escapes last year which should serve as a warning for this year.

—MANY children suffer from day to day; puny, pallid, fretful and feverish, variable appetite and restless sleep, finally die, and their parents never suspecting the real cause, that the little sufferers' stomachs are infested and eaten through with worms. Twenty-five cents invested in a box of McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders would save the doctor's bills and the patient's life. Entirely vegetable. Easy and pleasant to take. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers,

—Our readers are referred to the programme for Memorial Day, which has been somewhat changed as to the time for decorating the graves at the different places. The post at their meeting on Monday evening resolved to have the flags used for decorating marked with the name of the company to which each of the deceased soldiers belonged and it is the express desire of the post that said flags remain on the graves. Parents will please impress their children with the command that the flags are not to be removed after the ceremonies are over. The details of the programme for this place will be published next week.

--Stover's grocery is headquarters for Bananas, Oranges, Lemons and Confectionery.

—MUCH LABOR WITH LITTLE REWARD.—David Garey, of Wolfe's store, experienced an unpleasant disappointment with a stack of lime which he expected to be the greatest success in the limeburning line. In the first week of May he erected the stack and requested his neighbors desiring first-class lime for white washing purposes to hold their orders until his lot was ready. His customers, as well as David waited patiently on the completion of the job. But lo! when done it was found to contain barely sufficient lime to whitewash his own garden fence, not to speak of his neighbors' wants. The three bushels of coal and his labor were wasted and the customers had to get the precious article wherever they could. Too bad, Dave.

--The turnpike company are filling up and macadamizing Penn street. It is a necessary improvement. But the manner in which it is done is anything but practical and, as could be seen on Saturday night, is even dangerous. The idea of putting a pile of unbroken stone in the middle of the road and leave them lie over night is ridiculous. It can hardly be expected of the traveling public to first examine the road ahead of them on a dark night to find out whether or not there are obstacles on the public highway. Just such a pile of sharp rock impeded travel along the new hardware building and Wm. Kreamer, of Coburn, fell victim to an accident which might have cost his life. About ten o'clock he drove down street to return home when his horse struck the stone pile and went down in a heap, badly skinning itself in many places. The shaft of the carriage was broken in twain and the driver flew out over the front wheel, but fortunately escaped with slight bruises. It was an ugly wreck and Mr. Kreamer naturally looks to the turnpike company to pay the damages caused by the impediment.

TROUBLE NEVER COMES SINGLE-HANDED.—The truth of this proverb was well illustrated in the misfortunes which befell W. C. Duck, the young farmer of Smithtown, on Monday morning. One of his horses had got sick and it became necessary to shoot the beast. To do this he got a gun which had been standing in the house for several months, loaded with bird-shot, without being used. He shot off the gun preparatory to loading it with a bullet, when the gun bursted and scattered the load in all directions. The barrel struck Clayton's left arm with great force, bruising it badly. Another gun had to be procured to shoot the sick horse the loss of which is bad enough in itself, but depending on circumstances the subject of this item may be disabled for work for several weeks, which is quite an affliction in this busy season of the farmer. However few cases of the kind are so bad that they might not be worse, and Clayton can thank his stars that it didn't take his whole arm and even his head.

For the JOURNAL.

TEMPERANCE SIGNALS.—Let moderate drinkers know that light wines pave the way for whiskey and rum; and moderate drinking for drunkenness, disease and death.

Suppose you go to the saloon-keeper and offer to license him to sell your son whiskey for $5.00 a year. Oh, you don't believe in that; you don't want it sold to your boy. Then be honest, and don't vote to have it sold to somebody else's boy.

From the ranks of the children there are 60,000 doomed each year to the fate of the drunkard if the liquor traffic is continued. What answer do you make to this, ye mothers, who have no interest in the temperance cause, ye fathers, who vote 'license,' ye young women, who marry moderate drinkers.

Time is so short, eternity so great, and the ravages of strong drink so fearful, that it behooves us to rise in the might and the power with which God has endowed us, and in the name of the perishing, and the God who cares for them, demand that the traffic in strong drink shall cease.

C. WORTMAN.

PROGRAMME FOR MEMORIAL DAY, 1887, AT MILLHEIM AND VICINITY.

On Sabbath morning at 10 o'clock, there will be Memorial Services held in the Evangelical church, at Millheim, by Rev. J. G. M. Swengle. Comrades are urged to meet in the post room in full uniform not later than 9 o'clock, on said morning, from where they will march in line to the church. The post invites all churches in this community and surrounding towns to join in the services.

Monday—Decoration Day—the post will convene at M. M. Musser's, Aaronsburg, at 6½ o'clock, a. m., from whence they will proceed with their day's work of decorating the soldiers' graves in the following order:

St. Paul's church, Haines township, 8 o'clock.

Wolfe's church, Haines twp., 9o'clock.

Aaronsburg. Reformed and Lutheran cemeteries, 10 o'clock.

Return to Millheim between 11 and 12 o'clock, and decorate at 12½ o'clock.

Afternoon—proceed to Madisonburg where the ceremonies will take place at 2½ o'clock.

Complete the route at Rebersburg at 4½ o'clock and disperse.

From the Abilene (Kansas) Daily Gazette.

State Sunday School Convention.

Rev. J. A. Bright and J. C. Royer returned, last night, from the State Sunday school convention, which was held at Wichta, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, of this week. The convention was a success in every particular. Large attendance, interesting and instructive programme, excellent music and royal entertainment.

Rev. Bright, who for four years has been the recording secretary of the state association, and one year a member of the state executive committee, was at this convention chosen to the high and responsible position of general secretary. This places him at the head of the entire state work, and will require all his time. We are glad to learn that Rev. Bright will continue his residence among us, which means that the office of the general secretary, of the Kansas Sunday school association, will be henceforth located at Abilene. Hence another laurel for the Belle City—from Kansas.

We understand that the subject of above article will hereafter devote his entire time to this work. The position is worth $1500 per year, over and above expenses. We also learn from the same paper that Rev. Bright has been chosen one of the forty delegates to the international Sunday school convention at Chicago, June 1st, 2nd and 3rd, 1887. We are pleased to note the promotion of a former Aaronsburg boy in the western lands and send our hearty congratulations.

SMITH TOWN.

The farmers are busy planting corn.

The mountains northwest of this place are on fire.

The appletrees look very promising.

Dr. P. T. Musser is erecting new outbuildings on his farm.

Henry Keen put up a large shed at the rear end of his farm for the purpose of sheltering his farmhands and stock during a rain.

John Kimport has again taken hold of the plow handles and is as busy at farming as ever.

Once in a while a person gets in a "box" by helping along some of his fellowmen. As soon as they have earned a few dollars they feel rich and saucy and can do without working. And if the money is not forthcoming at once they think they can pound it out. But that kind of thing don't work very well in some cases, at least it did not with the "striker" from this place.

Elias Krumrine and W. C. Duck each lost one of their most valuable horses last week, while Mr. Bressler's young mare and one of Dan. Gentzel's best horses are at the point of death, and two of Jerry Snook's horses have the distemper.

B. F. Frankenberger traded his fine young mare off on a horse, and W. F. Smith took a cow in exchange for a horse.

Miss Maggie Swartz and Mrs. Corman are keeping house for Henry Keen.

Mr. Editor, shall I take the Gazette's advise about JUMBO.

The brick kiln west of Coburn is being pushed right along. They are turning out 3000 brick per day. Mr. C. K. Sober kindly donated some 15 or 20 cords of wood for firing the kiln.

Every person around Coburn seems to be busy. New buildings are being put up, old ones repaired and improvements generally seems to be the order of the day.

The contractors have commenced cutting timber on the Fiedler tract, west of Coburn, and are floating the logs down the creek to the mill. Samuel Ulrich has the contract for putting the timber in the creek, while Jacob Witmyer floats it to the mill. The Messrs. Whitmer are cutting and shipping one and two car loads of lumber daily.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucus surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on perscriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury and is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure that you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

TO THE PUBLIC.—A report has been circulated that the machinery in our mill is worn out, especially the Burr used for making flour. We take this means of declaring the report utterly false. We challenge any one in this part of the county to produce a better sett of Burrs than we have in our mill for the manufacture of flour and chop. We would just say that if any person doubts our word let them give our new miller, J. T. McDivitt, a trial, or come and see for themselves and be convinced of the untruth of said report. Mr. McDevitt intends to run a wagon weekly in this place, as well as to Aaronsburg, Coburn and Madisonburg. Thanking the people for past patronage we solicit a continuance of the same.

THE NEW LIQUOR LAW.

The Provisions of the Bill as Finally Agreed to in Both Houses.

HARRISBURG, May 11.—The following are the provisions of the high license bill as passed finally to-day by the Senate with several important amendments, which were promptly curred in by the House :

The first section makes ... keep any retail est... sale of vinous, s... ed liquors, e... as provi... T... ...it unlawful to ...olishment for the ...pirituous, malt or brew... ...except on a license obtained ...ed in the sections following.

...e second section requires that the ...icensed be a citizen of the United States, of temperate habits and good moral character.

The third provides that licenses be granted under previous laws not later than June 30, next, and that after that date, licenses shall be granted only by the Courts of Quarter Sessions of the respective counties, not later than April of each year, and for one year from a date fixed by said court. The court is also to fix a term for hearing license applications and remonstrances by evidence, petition of plea or counsel.

The fourth section provides that in cities of the first class (Philadelphia) the Mercantile Appraisers shall make sworn returns yearly in January, in connection with the mercantile tax list, of all licensed and unlicensed hotels, restaurants, or saloons selling liquor and the amount of each license paid, returning a duplicate list thereof to the clerk of Quarter Sessions and publishing the list in the manner prescribed for publishing the Mercantile Appraisers' lists. The Mercantile Appraisers shall also return a list of names and residences of all retail liquor sellers without licenses to the District Attorney for prosecution according to law. The Appraisers are to receive $2.50 from the applicant for each license granted. The general provisions of the fourth section are that every applicant for license shall file a petition with the Clerk of Quarter Sessions three weeks before the first day of the session of court in which applications are to be heard and pay the Clerk $5, and that the Clerk shall advertise the names and residences of applicants and the places for which license is wanted three times in two newspapers designated by the Court. No retail licenses are to be granted to wholesale or retail grocers.

The fifth section requires the applicant to state in the petition his name, residence and intended place of business, his birthplace and place of naturalization, if naturalized; the name of the owner of the premises, and to certify that the place is for the accommodation of the public; that the applicant is not interested pecuniarily in any other place in said county where liquor is sold, and that no one joining in the application is pecuniarily interested in any other place or will be during the term of the license; also whether any license of the applicant has been revoked within a year. Two reputable freeholders of the ward or township must be mentioned as bondsmen, and each one of them must own unincumbered real estate worth over $2,000 and must not be engaged in the manufacture of liquors. The petition must be sworn to.

The sixth section requires that each petition be accompanied by the certificate of twelve reputable electors of the ward, borough or township that they have known the applicant for six months; that they indorse his application, and that they have signed no other such petition in that year. The bondsmen or sureties shall be among the signers, and shall make oath to their indorsement.

The seventh section provides that the Court, after hearing petitions from residents of the ward, borough or township for or against the license, "in all cases shall refuse the same whenever in the opinion of the said Court, having due regard to the number and character of the petitioners for and against such application, such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public and entertainment of strangers or travelers, or that the applicant or applicants is or are not fit persons to whom such licenses should be granted, and upon sufficient cause being shown or proof being made to the said Court that the party holding a license has violated any law of this Commonwealth relative to the sale of liquors, the Court of Quarter Sessions shall, upon notice being given to the person so licensed, revoke the said license," and all the additional petitions and remonstrances are to be based on the necessity of the license to sell liquors or the fitness of the applicant, or on the necessity of the hotel, inn or tavern in the locality where the applicant proposes to sell the liquors.

The eighth section classifies the licenses as follows: "In cities of the first, second and third classes, $500; in other cities, $400; in boroughs, $200; in townships, $100. In cities of the first class four-fifths shall be paid for the use of the city and county and one-fifth for the use of the Commonwealth; in cities of the second and third class three-fifths shall be paid for the use of the city, one-fifth for the use of the proper county and one-fifth for the use of the Commonwealth; in all other cities or boroughs three-fifths shall be paid for the use of such city or borough one-fifth for the use of the proper county and one-fifth for the use of the Commonwealth; in townships one-half shall be paid for the use of the township, one-fourth for the use of the proper county and one-fourth for the use of the Commonwealth. The sums paid to the townships to be applied to keeping the roads in good repair.

The ninth section forfeits the license granted if the license fee be not paid within fifteen days. The tenth section fixes the bond at $2,000. The eleventh provides for reference of license petitions, when advisable or neccessary, to an examiner, whose fee shall not exceed $10 per petition referred.

The twelfth section requires constables to make returns during the first week of each term of the Quarter Sessions of all retail liquor establishments within their respective bailiwicks whether they are licensed or unlicensed, and provides for payment for such service and a penalty of fine and imprisonment for its neglect. The thirteenth section requires constables to make written returns monthly ... sonal visits, of all s... balliwicks where ..., based on per... with the nam... ...ch places in their The fo... ... the law is violated, licen... ...es of the witnesses.

...arteenth section requires that ...ses be framed under glass and ex...posed to public view in the chief place of sale.

The fifteenth section prohibits licensees selling by less measures than one quart, from giving credit therefore under penalty of forfeiture of the debt and of the legal right of recovery.

The sixteenth section fixes the penalty for selling without a license at from $500 to $5,000 fine and from three to twelve months' imprisonment, and the general penalty for violating other provisions of this law at $100 to $500 fine for the first offense, $300 to $1,000 fine for any second offense and $500 to $5,000 fine and three to twelve months' imprisonment for any third offense. No person convicted of more than one offense can be licensed in this State again and any licensee keeping a disorderly house or permitting the visits of disreputable persons shall likewise be liable to have his license revoked and shall not again be licensed.

The seventeenth section prohibits druggists from selling intoxicants except on the written prescription of a registered physician, or when selling alcohol or some preparation thereof for scientific or medicinal purposes, and makes it a misdemeanor for any physician knowingly to prescribe liquor for an intemperate person.

The eighteenth section forbids the furnishing of liquor to persons of known intemperate habits, to minors or insane persons or to any person already intoxicated or selling liquor on Sunday or on election days or by a pass book or by exchange for merchandise, under a penalty of $50 to $500 fine and twenty to ninety days' imprisonment.

The nineteenth section makes any place where liquor is furnished contrary to law a nuisance liable to abatement at the defendant's cost.

The twentieth section repeals acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith, except special prohibitory or special license laws, and requires all places where the special license is now lower than the rate fixed by the bill to pay the latter rate, but continues any existing rates that are higher.

Advice to Husbands.

Never talk in your sleep unless you are sure what you are going to say.

Don't be discontented. It is much easier to make your wife feel that way.

Never tell your wife that she is a charming singer unless you happen to be deaf.

Don't flatter yourself that you know more than your wife until you have got home from her funeral.

Don't be too unfriendly with your prospective son-in-law. He may think you intend to live with him after he is married.

Don't try and fool your wife about drinking unless you happen to marry an idiot. Then it isn't worth while to do so.

Never tell your wife how much better some other woman dresses unless you have more money than you know what to do with.

Never boast to your wife about the value of your past experience. Your mother-in law may settle herself down on you next week.

Never find fault with the quality of your wife's cooking. You may possibly drive her to join some cooking club, which would be much worse.

Lunacies.

When the moon is visible in the day time the days are relatively cool.

In Western Kansas it is said that when the moon is near the full it never storms, and sailors say the full moon eats clouds.

If the full moon rises clear expect fine weather.

A large ring around the moon and low clouds indicate rain in twenty four hours; a small ring and high clouds, rain in several days.

Last night the moon had a golden ring, but to-night no moon I see.

The larger the halo about the moon the nearer the rain cloud and the sooner the rain may be expected.

When the moon is darkest near the horizon expect rain.

If the full moon rise pale expect rain.

A red moon indicates wind.

If in her cheeks you see the maiden's blush,
The ruddy moon foreshadows the wind will rush.

If the moon is seen between the scud and broken clouds during a gale it is expected to scud away the bad weather.

In the old of the moon a cloudy morning bodies a fair afternoon.

If there be general mist before a sunrise near the full of the moon the weather will be fine for some days.

A Peril for Emigration.

Mr. Grant Allen a recent visitor from England, has discovered a peril from migration which has been wholly overlooked. He says he finds the worst weeds of England, Scotland and Ireland flourishing luxuriantly on our soil and also many others from the eastern countries of Europe. Some weeds have also been introduced from Asia, and he thinks we shall soon have an influx from every part of the world. They are generally, he says, of the very worst quality, and most obnoxious to the gardener and farmer, and, when once fairly naturalized, impossible to extirpate.

The Proprieties in Washington.

One thing, however is certain. In no city in the United States is there a higher regard for the usages proper among a cultivated and educated people than exists among the Washingtonians proper, and nowhere will a violation of any of the accepted rules of propriety be more promptly visited by the highest social penalties than here.

UNVEILING OF THE GARFIELD MONUMENT AT WASHINGTON.

An Imposing Demonstration Attending the Ceremonies—President Cleveland's Tribute to the Deceased Chief Executive.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12.—The second day of the reunion of the society of the Army of the Cumberland was a perfect specimen of Washington spring weather. The sky was cloudless, the temperature delightful, and a light breeze tempered the sun's rays just enough to make an ideal day for open-air ceremonies.

The society of the Army of the Cumberland held a meeting during the morning and cleared up the business of the annual reunion. Adjourning, they joined the procession that moved through the city to Maryland Circle, where, at 1 o'clock, the ceremonies attending the unveiling of the Garfield statue began. At the close of the ceremonies the members proceeded to the Seventh street wharf to take a boat for Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall.

The procession was an imposing affair. The dedicatory exercises were as follows: 1. Prayer, Rev S. H. Giesy. 2. Music, Star Spadgled Banner. 3. Unveiling of Statue; national salute at the navy-yard and on monument grounds; music, Hail to the Chief. 4. Addresses by Hon. J. W. Kiefer, on the part of the monument committee, transferring the statue to General Sheridan. 5. Acceptance by General Sheridan and transfer to the president of the United States. 6. Acceptance by the president of the United States. 7. Music, Hail Columbia. Benediction, Rev. F. D. Power.

The president's address was as follows: Fellow-citizens: in performance of the duty assigned to me on this occasion I hereby accept, on behalf of the people of the United States, this completed and beautiful statue.

Amid the interchange of fraternal greetings between the survivors of the Army of the Cumberland and their former foes upon the battlefield, and while the Union general and the people's president awaited burial, the common grief of these magnanimous soldiers and mourning citizens found expression in the determination to erect this tribute to American greatness; and thus to-day in its symmetry and beauty, it represents a sign of animosities forgotten, an emblem of a brotherhood redeemed, and a token of a nation restored.

Monuments and statues multiply throughout the land, fitting illustrative of the love and affection of our grateful people and commemorating brave and patriotic sacrifices in war, fame in peaceful pursuits, or honor in public station.

But from this day forth there shall stand at our seat of government this statue of a distinguished citizen who in his life and services combined all these things and more, which challenge admiration in American character, loving tenderness in every domestic relation, bravery on the fields of battle, of fame and distinction in our halls of legislation, and the highest honor and dignity in the chief magistracy of the nation.

This stately effigy shall not fail to teach every beholder that the source of American greatness is confined to no condition nor descendent alone for its growth and development upon favorable surroundings. The genius of our national life beckons to usefulness and honor those in every sphere, and offers the highest preferment to manly ambition and study, honest effort chastened and consecrated by patriotic hopes and aspirations. As long as this statue stands, let it be proudly remembered that to every American citizen the way is open to fame and station, until he—

"Moving up from high to higher,
Becomes on Fortune's crowning slope
The pillar of People's hope,
The centre of world's desire."

Nor can we forget that it also teaches our people a sad and distressing lesson and the thoughtful citizen who views its fair proportions cannot fail to recall the tragedy of a death which brought grief and mourning to every household in the land. But while American citizenship stands aghast and affrighted that murder and assassination should lurk in the midst of a free people and strike down the head of their government, a fearless search and the discovery of the origin and hiding place of these hateful and unnatural things should be followed by solemn resolve to purge forever from our political method and from the operation of our government the perversions and and misconceptions which gave birth to passionate bloody thoughts.

If from this hour our admiration for the bravery and nobility of American manhood and our faith in the possibilities and opportunities of American citizenship be renewed, if our appreciation of the blessing of a restored Union and love for our government be strengthened, if our watchfulness against the dangers of a mad chase after spoils be quickened, the dedication of this statue to the people of the United States will be vain.

The One He Forgot,

"John, I would like to invite my friend, Mrs. Smally, this evening. Will you be able to be in?" "No my dear; I must attend a meeting of the Knights of Honor to-night?" "Well, to morrow evening?" "I have the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and you know—" "What about Wednesday evening?" O, the Odd fellows meet that night, and Thursday I have a meeting of the Chosen Friends to attend; Friday the Royal Templars; Saturday there's a special meeting of the Masonic lodge, and I couldn't miss that; and then Sunday—let me see what is there Sunday night, my dear?" "The Grand and Ancient order of Christian Fellowship." Why I had forgotten; I am a member of that—let me see—" "But you have forgotten another society, John, of which you were once a member." "What's that? Your wife's."—Boston Record.

THE FALSE GODS.

Lauis Noir, in his "Memoirs of a Zouave in Algiers," tells of a General H, who wished to give an evening party in the magnificent grounds of his villa near Algiers. Wishing to have it conducted in great style, he spared no expense and did everything possible to surpass in originality the governor, who had recently given an entertainment, the splendor of which was still the subject of conversation in Algiers. All preparations had been carefully made, and the General believed nothing had been neglected, when it occurred to him suddenly that the garden contained no statues, and that would never do.

The General knew that in a certain regiment of good-for-nothing fellows was a sculptor. He was then working in his leisure hours on a bust intended for a monument to a fallen captain. The fellow was not without talent, and the General, who had no idea of the time required to model a group, doubted not that the artist could people his grounds with all the gods and goddesses of Olympus in eight days. So he sent for him.

'My young man,' said he, 'they say you are very skillful. Hear my wish. Next Saturday night I give an entertainment. I wish my gardens to be adorned with statues. I need Bacchus, Apollo and Venus in plaster. How much money do you require for the plaster?'

'A hundred frances,' replied the soldier with perfect coolness. 'The General found that rather dear, but gave him the money.

'Well, Saturday evening, 8 o'clock!'

That night it was lively in the taverns of Algiers. The artist set the General's frances flying, as he circulated from one drinking place to another; so it went day after day.

The day before the entertainment the General sent for his artist. 'I hear fine things,' he exclaimed, and angrily twisted his mustache. 'You are bumming instead of working. You are creating scandals, getting into disorder.'

'General,' interrupted the soldier, 'I can work only when I am tipsy. It's so with all great artists. If I have been drinking I must make noise, and then only comes the inspiration to work.'

'Truly,' answered the General, 'I have heard that before; however you understand our compact, and if to-morrow all is not ready, you shall be arrested.'

The festal night approached. Everything was prepared, but the statues were not there. Finally the master of ceremonies appeared and announced:

'He is below!'

'At last! And the gods?'

'Are also there. He had them brought upon biers.'

'Good. Are the statues handsome?'

'I have not seen them. They are covered with cloths. I wished to assist him but he drove me away, and said he would set them up himself, and if any one hindered him he would break them all to pieces.'

'He is right,' said the General, delighted to know that he possessed the gods at last. 'That is not your business. One must let artists alone.'

The General cast one more glance at his toilet, then descended into the garden. There he found the artist in open quarrel with the master of ceremonies. Standing before the placard upon which was written, 'Do not touch the statue!' the artist found the letters much too small and swore over it.

'Make the letters larger,' ordered the General, and proceeded with the artist to look at the gods. The fellow led him into the thickest, shagiest avenue.

'Where the duce have you placed your statue?' laughed the General. 'This is much too far from the light.'

'It should be thus,' the artist informed him. 'Plaster looks badly in a strong light. It requires foliage and heavy shade. You shall see a splendid Jupiter.'

The artist coughed violently and led the general to a leafy nook in which Jupiter stood. The General gave an expression of surprise. He saw a fine statue with a wonderfully beautified beard.

'The duce!' he exclaimed; 'that's a success!'

'Is it not, General?'

'The governor will be wild with envy! He has not such a masterwork in his grounds; and, moreover, your Jupiter resembles a little the corporal of the Zouaves.'

* * * * *

The guests arrived. Half an hour later the festivities began. From time to time the company strolled about through the embowered walks, and, returning, complimented the General upon his fine statuary. Especially Jupiter seemed to make a great impression, with the bolts in his hand and his magnificent beard.

The governor, who was present, heard the praise and wished to see Jupiter. The General hastened to accompany him to view the masterpiece. The guests followed them in troops. They were charmed. All being acquainted with the sapper corporal, they wondered at the resemblance of the statue.

Suddenly the governor started.

'What is the matter?' exclaimed the General.

'Oh, nothing,' said the governor, 'it only seemed as if the head moved. It was a mistake.'

'No,' exclaimed an officer, 'it really is moving. There it goes again.'

It was true. Suddenly Jupiter drew up his face; he appeared to make a great effort to control himself, but unsuccessfully, and then he began to sneeze with all his might.

The company was surprised. The General was astonished.

Now the god began also to speak.

'General,' said he, 'it was decided that I should not move; neither was I to speak; but I could not possibly prevent myself from sneezing.'

It was really and truly the corporal, who had been plastered over and converted into a statue.

The General became furious. He tore down a large branch of a tree and rushed precipitously after Jupiter, who descended from his pedestial and fled through the bushes, followed by shouts of laughter from the whole company.

In the meantime the alarm reached the ears of the other gods, who, getting thoroughly frightened, took to their heels and fled in dismay.

Just as the General had given up his chase of Jupiter through the thicket, the master of ceremonies and servants rushed out screaming: 'General, General, the gods are running away!'

'Let them go to the duce,' was the answer. 'They are false gods!' But to himself he said:

'Now I wonder no longer that he didn't want to have any one touch them.'

The incident had so enlivened the guests that the guilty parties were forgiven. It was such a festival as was never before celebrated in Algiers, and that was enough for the General. So he pardoned his artist and also the false gods.

"REUBEN," said Mrs. Stubbs, laying down the evening papar, "what is meant by optimism?" "Optimism?" "Yes. The paper says that optimism is not a characteristic of the modern age. Optimism, Hannah, is a disease of the eye, and you'll git it the fust thing you know if you keep on a-readin' that fine print."

Johnnie—"You are not a bit nervous are you, Mr. Smith?"

Smith—"Why, no, Johnnie; why do you ask?"

Johnnie—"'Cause ma said at breakfast to-day, that she thought you had a good deal of nerve to be sitting up with my pa till twelve o'clock without coming to the point.—Siftings.

ONE OF THE BOYS.—Wife (to husband)—"Why is young Tompkins called good fellow by his friends?"

Husband—"Because he is always good-natured and pleasant, can tell a story well, spends his money freely and shamefully neglects his family."
